

Jennifer Einolf, PCC

Ms. Einolf helps her clients earn the clarity necessary to release their energy and to find and take the actions that propel them forward. Utilizing her background as a commercial Interior Designer and a serial entrepreneur, she applies solid principles of design thinking, ontological coaching practices, and growth facilitation to the art of personal development. In addition to personal coaching, she offers communication and speaking clarity development services. Her clients discover their voice and deliver a clear, cogent, engaging, compelling message to their audience.

Education

Jennifer trained in the Ontological Coaching at Newfield Network in Boulder, CO. She holds a B.A. in Interior Design from Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond, VA and a B.A. in English from The College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, VA.

Past Experience

Ms. Einolf utilizes the Prospects of Possibility framework that she developed to help her clients identify opportunities for growth, change and improvement. As an ontological coach, she works with clients who are experiencing transitions and who are ready to create a change. Her clients have included founders, business owners, c-suite executives, and creatives.

Ms. Einolf serves as a speaker coach for TEDxRVA participants. She has partnered with leaders in technology, science, law enforcement and social impact to help them develop and refine their idea worth sharing. An accomplished and award-winning speaker, she has delivered presentations to audiences from 5 to 500. She has designed and delivered programs for the Virginia Chapter of the International Coach Federation, Toastmasters District 66, The Southeastern District of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod and a variety of companies, organizations, and groups.

Certification

Ms. Einolf has attained the distinction of Distinguished Toastmaster (DTM), the highest level of educational achievement in Toastmasters, an international organization that helps members develop leadership and speaking abilities.

Accomplishments

Ms. Einolf facilitates entrepreneur education in programs in Richmond, VA. She has taught both the WIBOS and Co.Starter curriculum. Her work helps early-stage entrepreneurs validate their business models and acquire the information and skills necessary to launch. She is a member of the Newfield Network Alumni Advisory Team, the Chair of Programs on the Board of the Virginia Chapter of the ICF, provides coaching to speakers for 1 Million Cups Richmond and Petersburg, and has served in a variety of Toastmaster roles at the club and district level.